The Hatikvah Sticker Collective gathers crafters, designers, and artists from international Jewish spaces in response to the catastrophe of October 7th. Born from the Kidnapped Poster Campaign, the collective draws influence from the Bezalel School, the rich tradition of Jewish art and contemporary and street art movements.

Its defining monochrome aesthetic is shaped by thermal printing—a medium that revolutionized mass sticker production. Direct thermal printing, once used for shipping labels, now powers rapid, low-cost DIY Stickers and Zines.

“People with 100 dollars to purchase a printer and 1,000 labels can change their neighborhood’s environment for the better.”

The Collective is global. Through Jewish street art, it forges a new/old Jewish public citizen—one who asserts presence, refuses erasure, and sees art as resistance.

Print, post, and participate.
